All 'Round Development Of Children Stressed By Episcopal Nursery School

PARENTS' library is a new feature at the Episcopal Nursery School opening its second semester Monday in St. Paul's Episcopal Parish Hall.

In it are books and pamphlets on child development that are helpful or interesting to parents.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Hess Jr., director of the school, and her assistant, Miss Betty Culley, are in charge of the library.

During the school's first semester 23 children from two to five years old were enrolled.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made to take care of as many as 40 children this coming semester. Sessions will be from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m. from Mondays through Fridays.

Mrs. Owen Tully, who received her training at Jessamine Institute, has been added to the staff. Mrs. Frank Hawke, a registered nurse, checks over the children on their arrival. It begins the daily routine.

First on the daily schedule is an hour-long play period. A 15-minute "clean-up" period for putting away toys follows. Juice or milk and crackers are served for a mid-morning lunch following a bath room period.

The children rest after eating, then have music and rhythmic, group activities and outdoor play when the weather permits.

THE PROGRAM stresses physical development, emotional and mental development and general habits of the children.

There is a large play space where the children slide on slides, ride tricycles, play with large blocks and have rhythmic games.

All this is to develop and coordinate major muscles.

They play with puzzles, hammer toys, crayons, paste, paints, scissors and clay. The teachers encourage the children to help themselves by trying their own shoe laces, hanging up wraps and putting on their boots.

All this helps develop and coordinate small muscles.

ROUTINE hand washing, regulated toilet periods and rest habits teach good health habits.

The children learn cooperation through sharing toys and group constructive activities.

They learn independence through helping themselves more as they grow older.

They learn the satisfaction of a job well done through drawing

LONDON, Jan. 31.—When Princess Elizabeth goes dancing with Prince Philip of Greece, one of her three favorite tunes is "People Will Say We're In Love."

If, as the song title hints, the Prince and Princess are really in love, 55 per cent of the English people are in favor of the match.

This figure was reached in a recent newspaper poll, which also found 40 per cent vehemently opposed. Five per cent said let them marry if they want to but Princess Elizabeth should renounce her right to the throne.

LESS ROMANTIC are the questions raised editorially by the British press, which asks: "What will be Russia's reaction? Of what international chicanery will Britain be suspected? What will be the reaction in America?"

These weighty conjectures appear to rest lightly on the Prince and the Princess when they appear in public. Whether it's an evening at the theater or an evening dancing at the Bagatelle, London's smartest night club, they act like any other well-bred gay, young couple.

THEY DO NOT seem to notice the buzz of busy tongues that surrounds them. The buzzing, naturally, is greatest when Elizabeth's favorite dance tunes are played. Her two other choices are "Let's Fall in Love" and "Sigh No More." And neither of them seem aware of the tall Scotland Yard sergeant who is always near Elizabeth's side on such appearances.

(The United Press however, in a recent London dispatch, quoted an unidentified member of the royal household as saying the rumors and newspaper accounts of the romance were actually endangering the romance itself.)

Princess Elizabeth, who is "Lil-labell" to her family and intimates, manages to look in real life as every princess is supposed to look in legend.

Her gleaming brown hair sets off a dazzling, typically English "peaches and cream" complexion. Slender and shapely, she thinks she looks her best when she wears gowns of her favorite color—dark blue.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH—The romantics duly note her favorite dance tune titles.

PRINCE PHILIP—The politicians duly note his visits to the House of Commons.

Case Records— Faith Healing Effective, But There Are Limits

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE M-228: Clarissa F., 41, is a church fanatic.

"I don't think you believe in faith healing," she stated belligerently at a convention where I had given an address. "I notice that you said a person with a headache should take an aspirin."

"Now I am absolutely opposed to aspirin, and I think if we got in the right spiritual attitude, we would not have headaches. If we trusted God and lived properly, we would have no need for doctors and medicines."

PSYCHOLOGISTS and physicians certainly believe in faith healing for many ailments—especially those which are mental. And most medical will freely admit that about 50 per cent of all their patients have nothing organically wrong enough to warrant their troubles!

Furthermore, there is an excessive use of patent medicines by many addicts who seem to swallow them as freely as water. Diseases which such remedies will cure, are obviously mental in nature, for most patent medicines are highly colored, sweetened or bitter liquids, with little or no organic medicinal value.

It is chiefly the faith of the patient, not the colored water, which cures him, if he really is healed. And the more highly colored the water, or the more impressive the testimonials, the greater his faith.

THIS SAME principle likewise holds true in hypnosis. The more prestige the hypnotist enjoys, the easier his patient will become hypnotized. These are common facts of psychology.

All diseases are certainly not mental, although I'll freely concede that the mind influences us in every kind of ailment. But people who think smallpox or diphtheria or sinusitis headaches are all mental, should look through a microscope.

It is silly to deny the presence of germs just because we can't see them with the naked eye. Put on your scientific spectacles (the microscope) and they soon become visible. You can even see them swimming around on the glass slide.

MANY PEOPLE who deny germs, will freely admit that mosquitoes and bedbugs are real. And they may also acknowledge having had the seven year itch, or scabies.

But the scabies mite looks much like a bedbug when you get it under the microscope, and it will crawl around for you, too.

Personally I would consider myself a "penny ante" Christian if I tried to divert God's busy attention from the major problems of the Milky Way to cure my simple headache when a penny aspirin tab-

Check Child Carefully Before Calling Doctor

Your child is ill, and you are telephoning a doctor.

WRONG WAY: Call without giving any thought as to what information the doctor is likely to ask for over the telephone.

RIGHT WAY: Before telephoning take the child's temperature and look him over carefully, so that you can answer any questions the doctor asks.

WEDDINGS
DR. HELEN TAYLOR, Frostburg, Md., became the bride of Howard W. Miller, Pittsburgh, Pa., Tuesday afternoon in the First Methodist Church in Frostburg, the Rev. Watson Holley officiating.

Dr. Taylor, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Taylor, Charleston, Ill., teaches higher mathematics at Maryland State Teachers College in Frostburg.

Mr. Miller is the son of Mrs. Cora Miller, 1027 Adams-av. He was formerly telegraph editor for the Evansville Press and is now employed on The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Bridal airs were played by Miss Mabel Meyers, who used the traditional processional and recessional. An arrangement of greenery and candelabra with tall white tapers was used at the altar.

The bride wore a rose sheer crepe, two-piece model, fashioned with circular revers and three large opalescent buttons. Her hat was of dark brown velour and her corsage of Tallman roses and Parma violets.

Miss Frances Hamilton, Washington, D. C., the bride's only attendant, wore aqua crepe with brown accessories. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of LaFrance roses, sweetpeas and baby's breath.

Russell Miller, Evansville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception followed the wedding. The couple is now honeymooning in the South.

Mrs. Morris Lenn has left for her home at Tuba, Ariz., after visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Schraener, 801 Idlewild-dr., and parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bowen, 607 Taylor-av.

IF STOCKY FIGURE—Want a gleaming white collar and cuff set to pick up that glittering winter dress? Large and small collar and cuff sets for high and V necklines add the spring touch to your dark dress. But don't buy beruffled neckwear an ymore than you would buy a dress of this type for your stocky figure. Do suit your type with semi-tailored neckwear.

Husband and Wife Get Call to Jury Duty

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(CP)—Mathematicians say it was only one chance in 196,000,000, but the rare coincidence occurred here when Commissioner of Jurors drew a husband and wife from 14,000 names.

Figuring in the juror duty rarity were Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Clark of Grand Island. The Clarks served for two weeks, he in supreme court and she as a trial juror in County Court.
